ACCOUNT HOLDER CHANGE

Joint accounts belong equally to both the primary account holder and the joint owner. Changing the joint account relationship can be done in two ways—voluntarily and involuntarily.

SAVINGS/CHECKING/MONEY MARKET ACCOUNTS

Voluntary Removal

Joint owners who voluntarily wish to be removed from an account should complete and return the Voluntary Removal of Joint Owner Request form (NFCU 596) on page 3. A written request from the joint owner is also acceptable.

Certificates

- > Certificate account numbers won't change.
- > Terms (i.e., rate, maturity date, dividend options) for your Certificate accounts will remain unchanged.

Involuntary Removal

If you're the primary account holder, you can close your account and open a new one in your name only or with a new joint owner. This action can be completed in a branch, online through an eMessage or by calling 1-888-842-6328.

- > This is known as an Account Shutdown.
- > If your current joint owner is unavailable or unwilling to initiate voluntary removal, you must close your existing joint deposit accounts.
- > Your Direct Deposit/allotment(s) will be redistributed to your new account number (remember to provide your employer's payroll department with your new account information).
- > All Navy Federal Debit Cards, CUCARDs® and Personal Identification Numbers (PINs) will immediately become invalid.
- > If requested, a new Navy Federal Debit Card, CUCARD and/or PIN will be mailed to you.

- > Your checking account, savings account and/or Money Market Savings Account (MMSA) will be closed.
- > The existing balance will be transferred to a new corresponding type account, established in your name only, under your new account number.
- > New starter checks will be sent automatically.
- > All outstanding debit card transactions will be paid.
- > All outstanding checks will be returned with the status "Account Closed."

The Checking Line of Credit (CLOC) will be closed.

- > The outstanding balance on the closed CLOC will be transferred immediately to your new account number.
- > You and your co-applicant, if any, remain responsible for repayment of the outstanding balance under the existing repayment terms.
- > Destroy all CLOC checks with your current account number.
- > You'll receive CLOC checks with your new account number.

Certificates

- > A new Certificate account will be established in your name only.
- > Terms (i.e., rate, maturity date, dividend options) for your Certificate accounts will remain unchanged.

INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ARRANGEMENTS (IRAS)

- > IRAs don't have joint owners.
- > Beneficiaries will remain the same. If you wish to change your IRA beneficiaries, you may complete a Designation of Beneficiaries for IRAs form (search "NFCU 584" on navyfederal.org).

CONSUMER LOAN

You and any co-applicant remain responsible for repayment of the outstanding balance(s) under the existing repayment terms.

CREDIT CARD

- > You and any joint cardholder remain responsible for repayment of the outstanding balance(s) under the same existing repayment terms.
- > A joint cardholder who wants to be removed may contact the primary account holder and request they complete a Credit Card Joint Cardholder Removal Request and Individual Application form (search "NFCU 225" on navyfederal.org). Alternatively, the joint cardholder may ask the primary account holder to call Navy Federal in order to submit a request to re-apply individually. If the Primary cardholder does not wish to apply individually, the joint cardholder may close the account to prevent future transactions.
- > If the removal of your joint cardholder is approved, the joint cardholder's name will be removed from the credit card account, and you'll be solely responsible for the balance. You may either keep the same account number or request a new one.
- > If you have an authorized user on your credit card, his or her name can be deleted from the account. The account can remain open, with its number unchanged. However, if the primary cardholder believes the account may be compromised, the credit card account can be closed immediately and a new number assigned. No new application is required in either circumstance.

- > If a new credit card number is requested, the former credit card will be declined by merchants. Therefore, until the replacement card is received, the primary cardholder will be temporarily without a credit card. If there is no concern about a compromise and the member wishes to retain the same account number, the authorized user should be instructed to destroy the card in their name, as payment for any charges remains the responsibility of the primary cardholder.

MORTGAGE AND EQUITY PRODUCTS

- > Both you and your co-applicant remain equally responsible for any outstanding balance.
- > The Home Equity Line of Credit (HELOC) will remain open unless you specifically request in writing to close this account.
- > If you choose to close your HELOC and later decide to re-apply, you must pay all fees normally charged to obtain a HELOC.
